COME to the Midwifery Today Conference in Suva, Fiji!

Join us for an educational and rejuvenating conference in beautiful Suva, Fiji, 20–24 June 2016. We're offering a schedule of classes to both inform and inspire you. Our amazing teachers include Carol Gautschi, Gail Hart, Chandra Dayal, Fernando Molina, Rachel Reed, Debra Pascali-Bonaro, Eneyda Spradlin-Ramos, Suzanne Thomson, Jan Tritten, Merewairita Valu and Emma Dilo. This conference is for anyone interested in the field of birth—midwives, doulas, student and aspiring midwives, childbirth educators, nurses and doctors.

Midwifery Today has been holding conferences since 1992 in countries across the world. In addition, we have an educational website and publish a quarterly magazine and an e-newsletter that are read by thousands. We are committed to promoting healthful, informed birth practices. Our conferences are so much more than amazing classes: They are a place to unwind, recharge, connect and build local and international communities.

The conference venue is the Fiji National University, Pasifika campus. Our Fijian hosts have great events planned for us. They are planning to sponsor two midwives from each of the 13 South Seas countries, giving you the opportunity to make some incredible contacts and friends. This is our golden opportunity to be greeted with the extraordinary hospitality of some of the most delightful people on Earth. In their “Rationale for holding a conference in Fiji,” they have stated the following: “The world needs a birth renaissance and Fijian midwives can help work together with international midwives to make the world a better place for birth.” This is an event you should not miss, so please, come be part of the solution!
